High-volume searches in spring. Lots of small operators with no marketing strategy who would jump at free lead generation. Seasonal but long season in NC (March-October). Ticket size hits the sweet spot for QuackQuotes 25% tier.

COMPETITION

Extremely High

Highly seasonal, extremely saturated, low ticket size, and price-sensitive customers. Most jobs fall under $200 putting QuackQuotes at the 35% tier which will feel too steep to contractors for low-margin work.

SEASONALITY

Storm-Dependent

Unpredictable demand, highly weather-dependent, long sales cycles. At 15% commission on a $8,000 job that is $1,200 to QuackQuotes per job which may face contractor pushback. Come back to this niche once the platform has proof of delivery.

Revenue Split Analysis

An honest breakdown of whether QuackQuotes' current pricing tiers work for contractors and the business.

Under $200	35%	Verdict: Too high for this tier. On a $150 pest control treatment, QuackQuotes takes $52.50 and the contractor keeps $97.50. For a job that costs them gas, time, and supplies, that margin will feel painful. This is the tier most likely to cause contractor churn or complaints. Compare to Thumbtack charging $15-75 per lead upfront regardless of win. The no-upfront-cost advantage softens it, but 35% is still aggressive on small jobs. Recommendation: Drop to 28-30% for sub-$200 jobs.

$200-$600	25%	Verdict: Solid. This is the sweet spot. On a $400 pressure washing job, QuackQuotes takes $100 and the contractor pockets $300. That feels fair when they paid nothing upfront, faced no lead cost, and just showed up with a quote. This tier covers the majority of pest control, gutter cleaning, junk removal, and pressure washing jobs. Most contractors will accept this without pushback. Recommendation: Keep at 25%. This tier is well-positioned.

15%

Verdict: Good, but consider adding a cap. On a $1,000 electrical job, 15% is $150 to QuackQuotes. That is reasonable. But if this tier reaches into roofing or HVAC replacement territory ($6,000-12,000 jobs), 15% becomes $900-1,800 per job which will face serious contractor resistance. Adding a maximum dollar cap ($300 max commission on any single job) would remove that friction while still protecting high-ticket revenue.

Recommendation: Add a $300 commission cap on any single job for jobs above $2,000.

OVERALL VERDICT

The model is fundamentally strong. Paying only on a win is a genuinely better deal than Angi, HomeAdvisor, or Thumbtack for contractors. The percentage structure just needs small adjustments: lower the sub-$200 tier slightly and add a high-ticket cap. With those tweaks this becomes one of the most contractor-friendly pricing models in the home services space.

SECTION 03

Bulletproof Offers

Five offer structures for onboarding contractors onto QuackQuotes. Graded on likelihood of success with small home service business owners in Raleigh-Durham.

OFFER 01 Pay Only When You Win

9/10

The pitch: "Join QuackQuotes for free. We run ads in your area, collect quote requests from homeowners, and show them your profile, your price, and your reviews side by side with other local businesses. You only pay us a percentage of the job if and when the customer picks you and you get paid. If you don't win, you pay nothing."

Why it works: Zero risk to the contractor. They have nothing to lose by joining and everything to gain. This is the strongest offer because it is the literal truth of how the model works. The guarantee is baked into the business model itself. Use this as the primary offer in all ads.

OFFER 02 First 3 Jobs Zero Commission

The pitch: "Join QuackQuotes today and your first 3 jobs you win through our platform are completely commission-free. No fees on the first three. After that the normal percentage applies only when you win."

Why it works: Removes all friction at signup. Contractors get to experience the platform delivering real jobs before they ever pay a cent in commission. Once they see it working on job 1, 2, and 3 they are already sold by the time commission kicks in. Cost to QuackQuotes is manageable especially on lower-ticket jobs. Best used as a launch incentive for the first wave of contractors in each niche.

OFFER 03 5 Quote Opportunities Guaranteed in 30 Days

The pitch: "We guarantee your profile will be shown to at least 5 homeowners in your niche and your area within the first 30 days. If we don't deliver 5 quote opportunities, your account is free for the next 30 days."

Why it works: Gives contractors a concrete deliverable to expect. Since there are no upfront fees anyway the guarantee costs QuackQuotes nothing financially. The weakness is that delivery depends on ad performance and volume in that specific niche and area. Only use this offer once pest control ads are consistently producing leads in the Raleigh-Durham market.

OFFER 04 We Handle Everything. You Just Show Up.

7/10

The pitch: "You do the work. We handle the ads, the lead collection, the customer communication, the follow-up, and the review automation after the job. All you do is submit a quote and show up to the job if you win."

Why it works: Speaks directly to the biggest pain point for small operators who have no time or budget for marketing. Positions QuackQuotes as a full back-office system, not just a lead marketplace. Works especially well for solo operators and small crews who are too busy doing the work to market themselves. Pair this offer with Offer 01 for maximum impact.

OFFER 05 Build Your Reviews While You Work

6/10

The pitch: "Every job you complete through QuackQuotes automatically triggers a review request to the customer. We send it for you. That means every job you win builds your reputation on autopilot."

Why it works: Reviews are the biggest asset for any small home service business and most contractors are terrible at collecting them. This offer targets their long-term business growth, not just immediate jobs. Weaker as a standalone hook but very effective as a secondary benefit mentioned in the body of an ad after the main offer lands. Do not lead with this one.

SECTION 04

Guarantee Options

Graded on risk to QuackQuotes, believability to contractors, and overall conversion power.

GUARANTEE	WHAT IT SAYS	RISK TO QQ	GRADE
Pay Only on Win	You never pay unless you win a job and get paid by the customer.	Zero. This is the model.	9/10
Win in 30 Days or Free Month	If you don't win at least 1 job through the platform in your first 30 days, your account is extended free for another 30 days.	Low. No upfront fees so "free month" costs nothing.	8/10
5 Quotes in 30 Days	We will get your profile in front of at least 5 homeowners requesting quotes in your niche within 30 days.	Medium. Depends on ad volume.	7/10
More Jobs Than Angi in 60 Days	We will get you more job opportunities in 60 days than you would get from Angi or HomeAdvisor for the same period, or your first 5 wins are commission-free.	Medium-High. Hard to track and verify.	6/10
Zero Upfront Lifetime Guarantee	You will never pay QuackQuotes a dollar before you get paid. Guaranteed forever.	Zero. Again, this is the model.	8/10

RECOMMENDED COMBINATION

Lead with Pay Only on Win in the hook and headline of every ad. Reinforce with Win in 30 Days or Free Month in the body as a secondary guarantee. These two together eliminate every objection a contractor could have about trying the platform.

Targeting Strategy

Broad targeting with a general landing page vs. niche-specific ads. Here is the honest answer.

OPTION A

Broad "Home Service Businesses" Ad

- Larger addressable audience in Meta
- One ad to run instead of many
- Landing page asks what niche they are in
- Lower creative production cost

The problem: A pest control owner scrolling Facebook stops when they see "pest control." They do not stop for "home service businesses." Generic ads get skipped. The landing page cannot fix a weak hook.

OPTION B (RECOMMENDED)

Niche-Specific Ads per Service Type

- Hook speaks directly to the person watching
- Far higher stop-rate and click-through
- Lower CPL because relevance is high
- Each ad goes to a niche-specific or general landing page
- Easy to test which niche converts cheapest

Start with pest control ads. Once that is converting, add gutter cleaning, then junk removal. Scale what works.

Landing Page Recommendation

One universal landing page is fine as long as the headline matches the niche in the ad. Use URL parameters or separate landing pages per niche. The form can ask "What type of home service do you provide?" as the first field so you capture the niche data without needing 10 separate pages. The critical thing is that the first thing they see on the landing page matches exactly what the ad told them they would find.

UGC Ad Scripts

Pest Control niche. Targeting pest control business owners in Raleigh-Durham on Meta. Hooks first, then body script.

Hooks

HOOK 1

If you own a pest control company in Raleigh or Durham, here is how we are sending free job leads to local operators. You only pay us if you actually win the job.

HOOK 2

Stop paying for pest control leads that go nowhere.

There is a platform in Raleigh that only charges you when you win the job and the customer pays you.

No monthly fees. No lead cost upfront. Nothing.

HOOK 3

We run ads in Raleigh-Durham targeting homeowners who need pest control.

When someone submits a request, your profile, your price, and your reviews show up side by side with other local operators.

And you only pay if they choose you.

HOOK 4

Angi charges you $30, $50, sometimes $100 per lead. Win or lose.

QuackQuotes charges you nothing until you win.

If you own a pest control business in Raleigh, this changes everything.

HOOK 5

What if every new pest control customer you got this month cost you zero dollars upfront?

Because that is exactly what is happening for operators who joined QuackQuotes in Raleigh.

Body Script

Here is exactly how it works.

We run targeted Meta ads in the Raleigh-Durham area. When a homeowner needs pest control, they fill out a short form on our platform.

That request goes live instantly to every pest control operator in our network. You see the job. You submit your quote. And your profile shows up to the customer with:

1. Your price
2. Your reviews and Google rating
3. A personal note you write directly to that customer

You are competing on more than just price. You are competing on reputation and trust.

If they choose you, you win the job. We handle all the follow-up and communication automatically. And when the customer pays you, we take a small percentage.

If they do not choose you, you pay absolutely nothing.

On top of that, once the job is done, we automatically send the customer a text asking for a review linked directly to your Google page. Every job you complete builds your reputation without you lifting a finger.

So if you are a pest control operator in Raleigh or Durham who is tired of paying upfront for leads that do not convert, this is your way in.

Click the link below and get your profile set up. It takes five minutes and costs you nothing until you win your first job.

SECTION 07

UGC Ad Scripts

Gutter Cleaning niche. Targeting gutter cleaning and exterior service operators in Raleigh-Durham.

Hooks

HOOK 1

If you do gutter cleaning in Raleigh or Durham, we are sending you job leads and you only pay when you win. No upfront cost. No monthly fee. Nothing.

HOOK 2

Every home in Raleigh needs their gutters cleaned at least twice a year.

That is thousands of jobs sitting out there every spring and every fall.

And we are running ads to send those homeowners directly to your profile. You pay nothing until they hire you.

HOOK 3

Gutter cleaning operators in Raleigh are getting booked through QuackQuotes without spending a dollar on advertising.

You submit a quote. You compete. You only pay if you win.

And every job you complete automatically asks the customer for a Google review.

Body Script

Here is the deal.

Most gutter cleaning businesses in Raleigh rely on word of mouth or Google rankings to get jobs. If you are not on page one or you do not have a hundred five-star reviews, you are invisible.

QuackQuotes fixes that.

We run ads targeting homeowners in Raleigh-Durham who need their gutters cleaned. They submit a request. Your profile shows up to them with your price, your reviews, and a personal note from you to that specific customer.

You compete on a level playing field. And you only pay a percentage of the job if and when you win and the customer pays you.

Nothing upfront. No monthly subscription. No paying for leads that go nowhere.

Plus every completed job triggers an automatic review request to the customer. Linked directly to your Google page. So while you are working, your reputation is growing on autopilot.

If you do gutter cleaning in Raleigh or Durham, click below and get set up in five minutes. It costs you nothing to join.

Static Ad

iPhone Notes app format. One creative to run across all niches with minor text swaps.

Pest Control Owners in Raleigh

QuackQuotes

We are sending free job leads to pest control operators in Raleigh and you only pay if you win the job.

No monthly fee. No upfront lead cost. Nothing until you get paid.

Here is how it works:

1. We run ads targeting homeowners in your area who need pest control right now
2. Your profile, price, and reviews show up side by side with other local operators
3. Customer picks you, you win the job, then we take a small cut of what you made
4. Every completed job auto-requests a Google review for your business

Click Learn More to set up your free profile. Takes five minutes.

How to Adapt for Other Niches

Swap "pest control" for the niche you are targeting (gutter cleaning, junk removal, pressure washing). Everything else stays the same. Run one version per niche as a separate ad set so you can track which niche costs the least to onboard a contractor.
